Hancock County Sheriff's Office awarded grant

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor announced today that the Hancock County Sheriff's Department will receive a $106,227 grant to hire two additional officers. The award is being made available under the U.S. Justice Department's Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS). The COPS program is an initiative to add 100,000 cops to the beat.

In his announcement of the award, Taylor said, "The COPS grant program is helping to reduce crime and make our neighborhoods safer. I'm very pleased this award is being made to the Hancock County Sheriff's Department."

All officers hired with COPS grants are used in community policing, a strategy that uses partnerships between law enforcement officers and the people they serve. A COPS grant provides funding for 75 percent of the total salary and benefits of each officer hired for three years. The remainder of the salary is paid out of local funds.

To date, the COPS program has provided funding to approximately 11,000 law enforcement agencies and added more than 92,000 officers to local departments.

Community education registration continues

Final registration for the winter schedule at Hancock Community Education Program at Hancock High School is 5-6:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1.

Final registration at Bay High School is 5-6:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 4.

For information call Gaynell Roberts, 467-3892.

Captain of the krewe

The Captain of the Krewe of Nereids heralded the opening of the 33rd annual bal masque held last Saturday at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum. The krewe entertained their guests with colorful costumes and an elaborately choreographed dance program entitled "City Sounds." See story and related photos on page 1B in today's Echo.

Task force arrest two on drug charges

BY B.R. HAWKINS

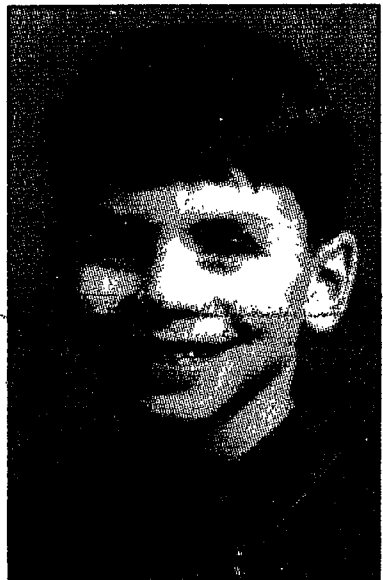

Hancock County Narcotics Task Force Director Shane Corr reported officers have arrested two people on drug-related charges.

Charles E. Celestine, 43, of Bay St. Louis was charged with possession of a controlled substance, crack cocaine, Jan. 28.

Corr said a Bay St. Louis Police officer, patrolling the 400 block of Washington Street Thursday evening, reported seeing Celestine and another man were in the street. The officer found one test tube containing two rocks of crack cocaine in Celestine's back pocket. He was arrested and taken to the Hancock County Detention Center where he is awaiting trial under a $5,000 bond.

Corr also reported that officers arrested Lynne Pfeiffer Holt, 42, off Kiln, Jan. 22, on

Best friends reign Krewe of Kids

BY ED LEPOMA

Two North Bay Elementary second graders and best friends have been selected to reign over this year's Krewe of Kids Parade in Bay St. Louis.

Krewe Captain Lisa Cowand said Karli Smith and Lance Tomasich were selected as Queen and King in a random drawing of names that were submitted.

Cowand also announced, that for the first time ever, she has chosen an entire family as Grand Marshals of the parade. Waveland Mayor Tommy Lon-go, his wife, Marcie, and children, Tiffany, Cali, and little Johnny will also ride in the neighborhood parade, Cowand said.

Queen, Karli Rae Smith, 7, is the daughter of Larry and Teresa Giveans and Kevin and Tonja Smith. She is the granddaughter of Jimmie Prince, Elbert Prince, Carolyn Ruhl, Sonny Boutwell and Larry and Sandra Giveans.

She is in the second grade at North Bay Elementary and has twice been chosen as a Terrific Kid. Karli is in her fourth year of dance at Arabesque School of Dance, and she is also a gymnastics student. She enjoys cheering and has been homecoming maid for the Bay Youth Football League for the past two years.

King Lance Joseph Tomasich, 8, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark J. Tomasich. He is grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John Favre Jr., Lollie Ramond and Edmund "Moon" Tomasich. Lance is also in the second grade at North Bay Elementary

Krewe of Real People to host ball

The Krewe of Real People Carnival Organization will announce King Korp XVIII and Queen Korp XVIII during their 18th annual Mardi Gras Ball on Saturday, Feb. 6.

The theme for this year's celebration is "Traditions Around the World." The newly crowned king and queen's court will have representatives from various countries and their traditions.

Newly elected Judge Robin Alfred-Midcalf, Harrison County Court Judge, will be Mistress of Ceremonies for the gala. The Grand Marshall for this year's parade will be introduced. The Honorable Judge John H. Whitfield, Circuit Court Judge, Harrison, Hancock and Stone counties, will guide the parade through the streets of Bay St. Louis.

This carnival ball is also the time when the krewe honors a citizen in Hancock County for their contributions to the community. The 1999 recipient of that honor is Mrs. Marian Martin, Executive Director, Gulfside United Methodist Assembly in Waveland.

Martin, a deaconess in the United Methodist Church, is a member of St. Rock United Methodist Church in Waveland. In 1989, she accepted an assignment at Gulfside Assembly in an effort to help restore facilities and reactivate programs at that historical site. With a strong commitment to preserving and passing on the heritage of black Methodists in the Wesleyan tradition, that assignment has extended into 10 years.

Dump turned into first-class range

BY ED LEPOMA

Pass Christian has turned a former dump site off Espy Avenue into a first-class firing range.

Police Chief John Dubuison escorted the Echo this week to look over the new city facility and said it was an example of what can be done with little money and a lot of cooperation.

"It's been in the making three or four years," said Dubuison. "But, it came together with the help of Harrison County Supervisor David LaRosa, the city administration and private industry help."

While the Echo visited the 40-acre site, a city employee was using a bulldozer to shore up the 20-foot wall of mud that surrounds the shooting area.

Before the building of the range began, Dubuison said LaRosa used county crews and equipment to work with city crews and equipment to clear and level the site.

"And, once it was cleared, Gulf Coast Pre-Stress Concrete donated the cement we needed to pave the shooting intervals," said Dubuison. LaRosa Glass of Long Beach donated the glass needed in the compressor room.

So, what other elements go into a firing range?

Probably the most expensive was the $12,500 spent by the city for the automated system that is needed to turn the 20 targets on the range. Then, a concrete block building was constructed to house the compressor unit, and a covered and lighted ramp was installed at the 25-foot shooting station. Other stations were paved at 3-foot, 7-foot, 15-foot, 40-foot and 50-foot intervals.

Ready, aim, fire

Pass Christian's new firing range is located off Espy Avenue, and will have 20 automated turning targets. The range, which will be used primarily by the Police Department, has been in the making for four years. Pass Christian Police Chief John Dubuison is pictured in the inset. ### Correction

The date for the Hancock County School Board meeting was reported incorrectly in the Thursday, Jan. 28, edition of the Echo.

The board will open its regularly scheduled meeting at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Monday, Feb. 1, in the district offices, Hwy. 603, Kiln. For additional information, contact the board office at 255-0376.

The Echo regrets the error.

Registration underway

Registration for the Hancock County Adult Education programs are underway. Registration at Hancock High School runs until Monday, Feb. 1, and at Bay High School until Thursday, Feb. 4. Telephone registration will be open until Thursday, Feb. 4. Reminding folks to register for course work are volunteers and instructors, from left, Yvonne Ladner, Stella Anderman, Doc Toups, Alyce Moran, Spencer Smith, Bennietta Hatchet and Gaynell Roberts. (Echo staff photo by B. R. Hawkins)

Firefighter completes training

Eddie Peterson of the Waveland Fire Department was among 24 firefighters who completed six weeks of intense fire-fighting instruction. The course was attended by firefighters and was designed to meet the uniform minimum training standards stated in the Mississippi Code Section 83-1-37, and the course also meets or exceeds the training standards set by the National Fire Protection Association for Firefighter Professional Qualifications.

Additional instruction was presented on Hazardous Materials for First Responders and the Incident Command System. Students have returned to their departments with an understanding of equipment found on fire apparatus, how the equipment functions and are able to test the safety of such items as hose and ladders. The Mississippi Fire Academy is a division of the State Insurance Department.

Commissioner George Dale and Academy Executive Director William Warren agree that these career firefighters through their newly acquired skills and knowledge will be an asset to the fire departments they represent in implementing fire protection for their community.

County's tourism revenues exceed average for 1998

A county-by-county breakdown of the state's revenues generated from tourism indicates Hancock County tourism dollars increased by 7.5 percent in 1998 over 1997 figures.

The Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development reported this week tourism revenues for the state, excluding gaming, were up 5.5 percent over last year. Hancock County figures were above average for the year, according to the Beth Carriere, executive director of the Hancock County Tourism Bureau. "The 7.5 percent increase in tourism related spending represents a $4 million difference in tourist monies spent in Hancock County in 1998 compared with dollars spent in 1997," Carriere said. "We are definitely going in the right direction," she said. "Without any substantial 'new' product, these additional monies spent in Hancock County prove the true value of marketing and promotion."

Winter tips for birds

It's winter, and the living is less than easy for many species of birds, according to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks. So what can you do to help?

"First, homeowners can offer a variety of foods for winter birds," Mississippi Outdoors magazine editor David Watts said. "Black-oil sunflower seeds is an excellent high-energy food that appeals to small and large birds."

Watts said now is the time to make sure thistle seed feeders are up and filled. This is a good food item for American goldfinches and house finches. "And, if we get severe enough weather, we may get an influx of purple finches and pine siskins. They also like thistle seed."

Birds like a variety of seeds. "Mourning doves can be attracted to backyard feeding stations by putting out cracked corn, millet and milo," Watts explained. "For several years, I've had common crows coming to my feeder when I put out the corn."

Watts advises putting our high-energy foods such as suet (beef fat) to attract red-bellied woodpeckers, tufted titmice, Carolina chickadees, Carolina wrens, and yellow-rumped warblers and others.

"Be careful, though. If the weather warms to above 65 degrees for several days, the suet can turn rancid and ruin. That's why I use year-round suet that's made with ingredients that don't spoil."

Another energy food Watts recommends is peanut butter. "My favorite recipe calls for mixing one part each of oatmeal and cornmeal with a lump of peanut butter. Continue adding the oatmeal and cornmeal in equal amounts until the concoction is not sticky."

Phone book recycling a success

Thanks to students throughout Hancock County 8,184 phone books will be recycled instead of ending up in a landfill.

Even more impressive, Coastwide, students collected a record 203 tons of phone books to be recycled rather than just thrown away.

There will be a presentation of awards and cash prizes at the Hancock County Courthouse at 9 a.m. Feb. 1.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors will present certificates and prizes to local schools on behalf of the Hancock Chamber and BellSouth.

Overall, the Hancock County phone book recycling campaign was a huge success. During the 1998 phone book recycling campaign Nov. 11-Dec. 18, students surpassed the previous year's effort by 618-books, a new record.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Litter, trash and illegal dumping appears to be an ongoing problem in our area.

Someone has an old refrigerator, washing machine, sofa, recliner, etc., they just drop it off on the side of the road, or near someplace where it should not be left.

I have written about one such areas several times over the years and that is the area behind the Goodwill Industries Store in Bay St. Louis.

Sure, Goodwill recycles some items, but not when they are all broken up and beyond repair, not to mention the household garbage and a little bit of everything else.

Please, if you have something you think Goodwill, the Salvation Army, or some other organization may be able to use, contact the folks first before just dumping it off in the dark of the night. One of these times a law enforcement officer will be waiting.

On the subject of litter, we should all be ashamed of our streets and roadways. The state, county and cities collect litter on a regular basis, yet no sooner than an area is collected it fills up again.

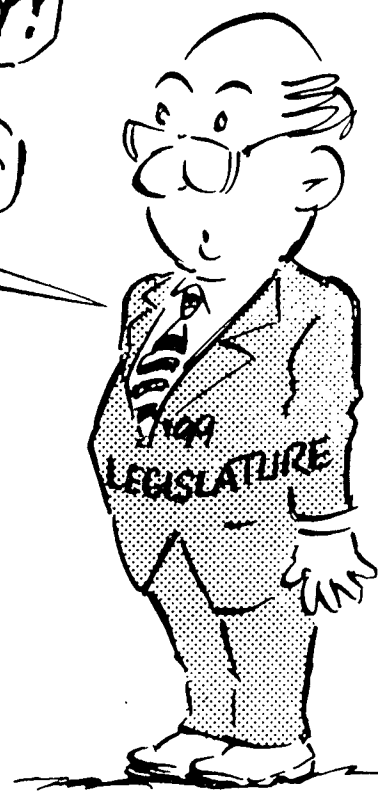

Litter bags are available FREE at the chamber's office and many other place throughout the area.

Legionnaires raising funds for World War II memorial

Dear Editor,

Many citizens of the United States are not aware there is no national memorial that pays proper homage and tribute to those men and women of the 1940s whose dedication, sacrifices and contribution saved the world by winning World War II, the largest war of all time and the most defining period of the 20th century.

This memorial is long overdue, and nearly 3 million members of The American Legion have mounted a nationwide grass-roots campaign to correct this oversight. Members in every local Legion post in thousands of communities throughout the country are helping to raise the funds to make this memorial a reality.

The American Legion campaign started on Veterans Day 1998 and runs through Veterans Day 1999 and is not limited to donations from just members of the organization. Every person living today owes that generation a debt of gratitude that can never be fully paid, for their conviction, their common bond, and their high moral purpose during this period of history, both overseas and on the home front. What they did demands that Americans, now and in the future, remember.

This memorial will be the first national acknowledging the commitment and achievement of the entire nation, and everyone can make a contribution to its construction. The donations will be a down payment of gratitude to the no-excuses generation that pulled freedom from the jaws of tyranny and preserved the values that make America great.

Public Law 103-32 on May 25, 1993, authorizes the American Battle Monuments Commission (ABMC) to establish the World War II Memorial in our nation's capital. It will be located in a place of honor in the National Mall, east of the Reflecting Pool between the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument.

Co-chairs of the national fund-raising campaign are former U.S. Senator Bob Dole and Federal Express CEO Frederick W. Smith; both are veterans and are dedicated to this worthy project.

They are asking for everyone's help. Schools, businesses and private citizens can make individual or collective donations by sending a contribution.

The American Legion is one of the torchbearers, helping the ABMC collect donations which can be made to any local Legion post or sent to: The American Legion, P.O. Box 781138, Indianapolis, IN 46278-8138.

For more information, visit the WWII Memorial Website (www.wwiimemorial.com).

Every American can help the American Legion and the American Battle Monuments Commission meet this challenge.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

By Representative J.P. Compretta

Legislature works on bills, constitutional amendments

House members spent the major portion of week four of the 1999 Legislature working on bills and constitutional amendments that originated in their own chamber.

Lawmakers were facing a Feb. 2 deadline to pass or reject bills in the house of their origin. It is the first major deadline of the 90-day 1999 session that began Jan. 5 and is scheduled to end April 4.

Examples of the committee action during the week of Jan. 25-29:

— The House Education and Appropriations committees both approved a bill to create the Mississippi School of Fine Arts for artistically-talented 11th and 12th grade students.

The residential facility, to be operated by the State Department of Education, would be located on the refurbished campus of the old Whitworth College campus in Brookhaven.

Under the plan, the school's first class would consist of 80 students in the 11th and 12th grades in the 2001-2002 school term, increasing eventually to 280 students chosen from across the state.

Students would specialize in one of four art forms — dance, music, theater-visual arts or creative writing-literature.

Basic courses such as mathematics, science, English, social studies and foreign languages would be taught at nearby Brookhaven High School.

By the time it is fully operational, estimated annual costs are about $4 million.

— The House Judiciary "A" and Appropriations committees approved a bill that experts say should help carry out of death sentences for people convicted of capital crimes.

The bill would create the State Office of Post-Conviction Relief to provide legal counsel to prisoners who have been sentenced to death.

Mississippi hasn't carried out a death sentence since 1989, and advocates say the lack of adequate counsel on post-conviction appeals has been a major hurdle.

The office would open with two attorneys and staff at an estimated cost of $375,000, but likely would be expanded later.

— Alveda King of Atlanta, a niece of slain civil rights hero Dr. Martin Luther King, urged the Education Committee to allow parents to choose the schools their children attend and to provide income tax credits for taxpayers making cash donations to school tuition programs.

— State higher education leaders gave the Appropriations Committee a report after the State College Board voted to allow the University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf Park campus to offer freshman and sophomore classes.

The Long Beach facility will admit 150 freshmen in the next school year, with plans to admit 750 freshmen by the fifth year. Some $2 million is being sought to finance the expansion. Some $3.5 million in extra funding will be required by the fifth year.

USM will continue to build on programming already existing with Gulf Coast Community College to assure students full access to the extensive course offerings at both institutions.

It was stressed the USM-Gulf Park will be a non-residential campus that will offer few of the amenities of the regular four-year university campus.

For example, there will be no athletic programs. The average age of the current Gulf Park student is 31 years, "adults who are working to pay car notes and a house mortgage," the committee was told.

The current campus comprises about 40 acres, but could be expanded to almost twice that size.

— The Judiciary "A" Committee approved a bill that would subject some gaming winnings to child support court orders. Under the plan, casinos would run computer checks whenever a gaming patron wins either $1,200 from slot machine play or $10,000 from table games to determine whether the gambler is delinquent on paying child support.

If the computer review finds the winner in arrears, all or part of the winnings would be turned over to the State Department of Human Services — which oversees the child support program — for distribution to the parent and child owed the money.

In floor action during the week:

— The House voted to allow county assessment records to be maintained electronically. Counties historically have maintained the records in burdensome log-books.

— The House passed a bill that directs insurance companies to offer "buy-back premiums" to help Gulf Coast residents reduce the cost of so-called "hurricane deductibles."

Whenever a Gulf of Mexico hurricane is named, a 2 percent hurricane deductible kicks in, and increases the deductible amount before an insurance company pays for storm damages.

The problem became acute in 1999 when Hurricane Georges slammed into Coast areas. At least one major company is already offering the proposed plan, after Coast residents raised a furor over the higher deductible.

— The House passed bills to enhance penalties for crimes against the elderly and for the offense of indecent exposure.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI SENATE

By State Senator Scottie Cuevas

Senate passes teacher pay hike as committee deadline nears

Mississippi teachers will receive the largest pay-raise in their history, if Senate Bill 2186 is passed by both houses and signed by the Governor.

On Tuesday, it passed the Senate. The House has passed its own version.

SB 2186 proposes to raise teacher salaries an average of $6,000 across two years. Pay increases also are included for assistant teachers.

The Senate bill, which would take effect this fall, includes $2.9 million to assist several local school districts that will not have local funding available to increase salaries for teachers not covered by the state-provided salary base known as the Minimum Program. Total cost is $103-million.

Since the House and Senate teacher pay-hike bills are different, a compromise will likely be sought by a conference committee composed of appointed senators and representatives.

If a compromise is agreed upon by the conference members, each chamber must approve it. Otherwise, we will continue to work on resolving differences.

On Wednesday, the Senate also passed SB 2382 to help solve a variety of problems associated with the mining of sand and gravel throughout the state. The bill will require a state permit before mining operations begin with strong civil penalties for failure to comply.

This is the third year such a bill has been passed by the Senate. Other provisions are aimed at speeding up the permitting process, as well as allowing some exemptions for small amounts of gravel needed by boards of supervisors and landowners.

Committees continued to work as members faced a Feb. 2 deadline to approve bills, kill them or let them die for lack of consideration. Feb. 11 is the deadline for floor action on these bills.

The Wildlife & Fisheries Committee passed SB 2904 to establish a voluntary scenic streams stewardship program, which is aimed at combining private conservation efforts with local education programs to conserve and protect unique or significant natural streams.

The stewardship program would be coordinated by the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries & Parks, which will inventory and evaluate state streams for attention. A pilot program is planned to include six designated rivers or creeks, which have been designated for inclusion in the state program.

The Senate also passed SB 2646, for $975,000 to repair Mississippi State University's ice-storm damage not covered by federal emergency relief funds; SB 3054 for additional funding to ensure an accurate count by the Census 2000; and SB 2156, a conservatorship program for school districts failing to meet accreditation standards.

Among the other bills gaining committee approval were:

— SB 2226, for $2.3 million to help rural fire departments purchase fire trucks;

— SB 2844, to establish a special fund to pay for legal representation of poor persons in civil matters; and — SB 2436, to continue for another year to work of the Joint Natural and Scenic River Study Committee, which is examining the state of rivers and streams throughout Mississippi.

Last week, the Senate commended several outstanding citizens, including school nurses throughout the state.

Candidates need to know: New campaign finance law in effect for 1999

By Eric Clark
Secretary of State

I'm very pleased to report that Mississippi has enacted one of the most far-reaching campaign finance reform measures in the nation. These new provisions will affect all candidates in this year's statewide election.

Supporters of campaign finance reform enjoyed a historic victory when the Mississippi House of Representatives and the Mississippi Senate voted to pass House Bill No. 1609 over the Governor's veto. The vote in the House was 102-19. The vote in the Senate was 35-14.

I am proud to report that the measure enjoyed strong bipartisan support. The bill was authored by two Republican Representatives and two Democrats.

The final version was written by a conference committee of three Republicans and three Democrats.

I was especially happy the Justice Department acted swiftly to approve our new law. In order to gain quick approval, I led a delegation to Washington D.C. to present our case.

I have said that this law "is as strong as nine acres of garlic." It is the first major piece of legislation reforming Mississippi campaign financing in more than a decade.

Here are some of the provisions which drew the most attention:

Community clean-up

Members of the West Hancock County Volunteer Fire Department have worked with inmates from the Hancock County Jail and members of the community in cleaning up areas around Pearllington. The fire station, 16004 Washington Street, will serve as the site to dump materials including tires, appliance, scrap metal, and batteries. According to Fire Chief Sam Bailey, the department has collected over 1,500 old tires and over 500 appliances in the clean up effort. Bailey encourages neighbors and friends to become involved. For more information, contact Sam Bailey at 533-0050.

Stennis Space Center goes on-line with job listings

For those seeking employment at the many different agencies located at Stennis Space Center, the NASA Human Resources Office now has an on-line listing of job opportunities at the south Mississippi center. The site can be found at <http://www.ssc.nasa.gov/hr-contacts/contacts.htm>.

Partners for Stennis, a support group of community leaders whose goal is to inform the public about the unique multi-agency facility, suggested the Web site to Stennis Space Center officials as a way to make communities aware of the significant economic, educational and social benefits Stennis provides to the region.

"This one-stop job information site will expedite an individual's pursuit of job opportunities at Stennis Space Center," said Dr. Martin Berry, chairman of Partners for Stennis.

The Web site offers links to many of the more than 30 resident agencies, including NASA and the United States Navy.

"The idea for such a Web page evolved as an opportunity for people moving into the area as well as those already in this region," said Jon E. Ritten, a Partners for Stennis member.

"This new resource will also give Stennis Space Center a way to recruit individuals from across the country."

Each agency at Stennis was consulted to help design the Web site and a point of contact in each of their human resources offices was assigned. If agencies had an existing electronic site for job opportunities, links to the Stennis job site were added.

The reviewing stand is in front of the Bay St. Louis Historic Depot.

committees (PAC's) receiving most of their money from out of state may hide the names of their contributors, even though their money is spent on Mississippi elections.

All PACs giving money to Mississippi candidates will report the sources of all contributions above $200.

For a complete copy of House Bill No. 1609, contact your Circuit Clerk or our office at 800-829-6786. Copies are also available on the Internet (www.sos.state.ms.us)

County candidates.

Most of the new law applies only to statewide and legislative candidates. However, there are some new provisions affecting candidates for county office.

The first campaign report is now due May 10. This report must include a total of all money raised by a candidate. New reports detailing reportable contributions received right before an election must also be filed with the appropriate office.

If you have questions about how the new law may affect you, call 800-829-6786.

Report "soft money."

"Soft Money" is money spent for campaign purposes that evades legal reporting requirements and/or limits. It is used to influence elections and benefit candidates without the most basic public disclosure.

The new law requires all Mississippi political parties and their committees to file campaign finance reports and tighten rules on groups who attempt to avoid PAC status.

Require more disclosure.

Lower the reporting threshold from $500 to $200 for all candidates for state office (the same as for local office and U.S. Congress). That means any candidate who receives more than $200 from an individual, PAC, or corporation must make that contributor's name public.

Tougher enforcement.

All reports must be filed before an official takes office. Our office will assess fines against candidates and groups who do not file reports on time.

Close the out-of-state PAC loophole.

People—Ball

She has volunteered with Christmas in April, and enjoys working with people with handicapped conditions and with teenage families. Mrs. Martin has been re-energized by the children and youth that are being nurtured and cultivated at Gulfside Assembly. She is a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated and Leadership Hancock County, 1997. She has received awards from Gulfside Assembly, Gulfside Booster Club, the Hancock County NAACP, Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Iota Upsilon Chapter, the United Methodist Women of the Mississippi Conference, School of Christian Mission and the Peoples Institute for Survival and Beyond of New Orleans. During Black History Month 1998, her portrait was included in an exhibit by local artist Joseph Pearson, entitled, 'Unsung Heroes' at the George Ohr Cultural Center in Biloxi.

Mrs. Martin was born in Wadesboro, N.C. She attended schools in North Carolina and New York. She became interested in mission work at an early age and learned firsthand about missions while attending a Lutheran High School in North Carolina where she was taught by former missionaries to Africa.

Mrs. Martin is married to Roosevelt C. Martin. They have four sons and seven grandchildren and they reside in Waveland.

The Krewes of Real People is the only predominantly African-American carnival organization along the Gulf Coast and is the only parade that rolls on Fat Tuesday. The parade begins at 1 p.m.

For information regarding ball tickets contact Wesley Labat, president, at 467-4768 or 467-5580 or call Sandra Price, Captain, at 467-9852.

Range

Right now, there's no running water to the site and no sewerage connections, so Dubuisson said water will have to be hauled in, and port-a-lets will be stationed at the site.

"It's a little inconvenient, but it's what we have to do," said Dubuisson.

The firing range is 99 percent complete, except for the fencing and gates that will be erected around the facility. And, last week, the city advertised for a little over 1,000-feet of fencing and gates, and the city's consulting engineer says that should cost between $10,000 and $15,000.

But, the police force is already using the firing range. Dubuisson said some of his officers were scheduled for night-firing Thursday night.

Before the city had its own firing range, policemen and others who need to be certified in order to stay on the force had to travel to Gulfport's firing range located near the airport.

Dubuisson said two of his officers, Tom Pustay and Bert Holland, are qualified firearms instructors, but it only takes one person to run the course.

Under city regulations, policemen are required to be certified in firearms twice a year, but Dubuisson says they shoot about four times a year, "and, now we'll probably fire more." Each policeman must be certified to handle a 9 mm pistol and a 12-gauge shotgun.

Initially, the firing range will be used only by the Pass police force, which includes Dubuisson, his assistant chief, 12 city patrolmen, three investigators and a warrant officer. "Of course, it will also be available to law enforcement officers from other parts of the coast, too," said Dubuisson.

But, Dubuisson said later on, he hoped to open the range up to the public "maybe one weekend a month."

He said the city would charge a small fee for the use of the facility, and for the safety instructions.

The chief said he is also tracking National Rifle Association regulations that will be used to govern how people will conduct themselves at the firing range.

And, there's room for expansion to the east and north of the site, Dubuisson said.

Later on, he hopes to add an instruction room where people can attend safety classes.

"But, right now, we're happy that we've come this far," said Dubuisson.

and has been chosen a Terrible Kid three times. He enjoys playing baseball, football and playing with his friends.

Cowand said there were 15 nominations for Queen, but only two nominations were submitted for King. Each nominee was assigned a number and then the numbers were picked out of separate hats to select the royalty. Oddly, this year's King and Queen were both nominated by Teresa Giveans, Karl's mom.

The Krewes of Kids takes traditionally features 100 to 200 children on foot bikes, wagons, or skates. The parade takes to the streets beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, following its traditional route from Highland Drive, up Dunbar Avenue to Boardman, over to Leonhard, then back to Dunbar Avenue, ending back on Highland. The parade reviewing stand is at Dunbar Village. For more information, contact Cowand at 467-0506.

Arrests

charges of possession with the intent to distribute marijuana. Corr said a search of Holt's residence resulted in the confiscation of nearly three-quarters of a pound of marijuana as well as a number of zip lock bags containing individual portions of the drug.

The Task Force, in cooperation with the Long Beach and Gulfport police departments, conducted a spontaneous search at Hancock High School Tuesday, Jan. 26.

Students, responding to a fire drill, waited outside the school complex while officers conducted their search. Corr said officers conducting the search, which is done periodically and in conjunction with school policies, found no drugs.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, JANUARY 31, 1999-9A

OLA wins

Rocks cage Tigers

Bay High's Jason Rieben, right, passes the soccer ball past St. Stanislaus defenders Rimmer Covington and Diego DelaFuente during first half action of the cross-town matchup. The Rock-A-Chaws won the contest 6-0. Justin Wadsworth had two goals for the Rocks. Nick Middleton, Diego DelaFuente, Brennan Brooks and Ronnie Vanney each had a goal for St. Stanislaus. Diego Alvarez had two assists while Wadsworth and Middleton had one each. (Sea Coast Echo staff photo by Randy Ponder)

Third annual intercollegiate golf tournament slated

The third annual Bridges All-American Intercollegiate Invitational, a collaborative effort between the University of Southern Mississippi and The Bridges Golf Resort at Casino Magic, is set for Feb. 7-9.

The public is invited to participate in the college-am on Sunday, Feb. 7 at 12:30 p.m.

There will be 21 five-man teams with one collegiate golfer and four amateurs. Teams are being accepted now, but space is limited. Entry is $125 per person of $500 a team.

"We are delighted to host one of the most outstanding college golf tournaments in the country in collaboration with USM," said Joe Billhimer, general manager of Casino Magic Bay St. Louis.

Registered teams include Arkansas State University,

Florida State University, Georgia State University, Wichita State University, Louisiana State University, Memphis University, Middle Tennessee State University, University of Minnesota, North Carolina State University, University of South Alabama, University of South Florida, Southeastern Louisiana University, University of Southwestern Louisiana, Tulane University, University of Alabama-Birmingham, University of Wyoming, and the host school, University of Southern Mississippi.

Billhimer said that this is a great opportunity for amateurs to play the course with collegiate athletes. The course celebrates its two-year anniversary Feb. 1.

For information or to register, call The Bridges Pro Shop at 1-800-562-4425, ext. 4561.

Changes proposed in state fishing regulation

Several changes are being proposed in state fishing regulations, according to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

As a result of studies by fisheries biologists, the minimum size of largemouth bass taken on Eagle Lake north of Vicksburg is expected to change.

Biologists are proposing to change the minimum length limit on largemouth bass on the lake from 14 inches to 16 inches. Louisiana previously made these changes to the bass length limit on Eagle Lake.

In other fisheries news, the agency is proposing to reopen Lake Columbia in Marion County to the public Oct. 16. The impoundment has been closed for renovation and restocking.

Also, triploid crappie have been stocked in Lake Bolivar County east of Rosedale. The agency has implemented a 10-inch minimum length limit on these fish at the lake.

The Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks is proposing to take these actions in the days ahead. If anyone wishes to make comments about any of these matters, they should send their written comments to: Executive Director, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205-0451.

Registration set for girls ASA fastpitch

Registration for girls ages, 5-18, for American Softball Association (ASA) fastpitch softball will from 1-5 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 6, at the Bay St. Louis Athletic Complex, Athletic Drive, Bay St. Louis.

Additional registration dates will be Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 20 and 21, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The cost is $30 for the first child; $25 for the second and $10 for each additional child in a family. The child's birth certificate is required at the time of registration.

Coaches, sponsors, and board members are need for the league. For more information, call Richard Pate at 586-0947 or Leslie Besacon at 467-2348.

10A-THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, JANUARY 31, 1999

Why you need stocks and bonds

If put it mildly, 1998 was an eventful year for investors. The stock market continued its uninterrupted rise for the first six months, then stumbled. By the end of August, all of its gains for the year had been more than wiped out. But the market turned around again and hovered around 9000 in December.

These results translated to the mutual fund market, as well. Some stock mutual funds experienced a trying year, but bond funds generally performed well. This was not surprising. In nine out of the 10 years since 1930 in which equities experienced negative returns, intermediate-term Treasury securities earned positive returns.

When stocks go down, bonds generally go up. This relationship between equity and debt holds true not only in the United States but also in foreign markets. Since 1990, Japan's Nikkei Index of stocks has fallen about 65 percent. In the same period, an index of Japanese bonds has risen about 90 percent.

However, over the long term, stocks have consistently outperformed bonds in total return. In the past 25 years, the Dow Jones Industrial Average has risen more than 2,500 percent, an annual average of about 14 percent.

These long-term gains were not without interruption. One study of that period showed that in 112 of those 300 months — three out of every eight — a portfolio that mirrored the Dow would have lost money. Losses of 5 percent or more a month were not uncommon.

That's where bonds come in. In fact, as global financial markets become more uncertain, top-rated government and corporate bonds become even more important.

So should you invest in stocks or bonds? The answer is, both. When one segment of a portfolio experiences troubled water, the other serves as a safe harbor. It's called diversification.

What would you do with a financial windfall?

Most of us dream about what we'd do if a financial windfall came our way. Those dreams may be closer to reality than you might think.

The U.S. Census Bureau reports that the nation's 76 million baby boomers will begin retiring in 2011, and many of these people will receive lump-sum payments from their retirement plans. In addition, a 1995 Cornell University study found that these same boomers stand to inherit $110 billion, a figure that is estimated to increase to $240 billion by 2015.

What do people typically do when they receive a financial windfall? To find out, the Forum for Investor Advice, a nonprofit investor education organization, recently surveyed households that had received large sums of money. Many of the respondents were from moderate- to low-income households. Nearly half had income of less than $50,000 a year, yet 30 percent of the respondents received payouts of $100,000 or more.

Where did these people get their money? No one won the lottery. Forty-four percent received it from a retirement plan, 22 percent inherited it, 7 percent received their windfall from an insurance settlement, and 27 percent received it from other sources.

Surprisingly, fewer than half of these people were happy or excited. Some even expressed anxiety.

Recipients used very little of the money to pay off debt or buy luxury items. Fifty-four percent invested their entire windfall, and nearly nine out of 10 invested at least some of the money. Mutual funds were the most popular investment, chosen by 54 percent of the respondents. Stocks were the choice of 28 percent.

However, most of the recipients were not experienced investors. Only 14 percent said they considered themselves extremely or very knowledgeable in investing matters. But 60 percent of the recipients turned to financial professionals for help in investing their money, and 96 percent of these people were satisfied with the assistance they received.

This survey reveals good news: People who come into large sums of money are usually diligent in handling it.

Business incubators thriving, especially the 'joiners'

The National Business Incubation Association's (NBIA) 1998 State of the Business Incubation Industry study shows that since their inception North America's nearly 600 incubators have added some 19,000 companies and more than 245,000 jobs to the economy. It also showed — in the words of the old American Express sell line — that membership has its privileges.

"This is the fourth such study NBIA has conducted since 1989, but for the first time we compared the performance of members to nonmembers to see if members had an edge," says Dinah Adkins, executive director of NBIA, Athens, Ohio. "Boy, did they ever!" Member incubators outperformed non-member incubators in every category.

For instance, member incubators served, on average, twice as many client companies and nearly twice as many graduates as nonmember incubators did. The average member incubator's client companies created one-third more jobs than client companies from nonmember incubators.

NBIA saw positive trends in general among business incubators, which house very-early stage companies and provide on-site management and a full array of business planning, management and financial services.

The study showed that the number of client companies and graduates has steadily climbed. The operating budgets have done the same. More importantly, incubators are offering a wider variety of services to their clients, including fundamental ones — such as building management teams or drafting realistic marketing plans — and more specialized ones. For instance, 58 percent (62 percent of members) help connect their companies to investors and strategic partners.

The 1998 State of the Business Incubation Industry contains 67 charts and graphs profiling the industry and highlighting results. Some findings:

- Forty-five percent of today's incubators are urban, 36 percent are rural and the remaining 19 percent are suburban.
- Most (43 percent) are mixed use and another 25 percent are technology. Ten percent focus on manufacturing companies and six percent on service companies. The study revealed growth of the newer, "targeted" incubators — ones that focus on a specific industry such as software, food manufacturing, multimedia or the arts. They are nine percent of that total.
- The average incubator was established in 1991.
- The average operating expenses are $256,713 (and about $280,000 for members).

- There is no such thing as a standard size for incubators. The average incubator is 36,657 sq. ft., the mean is 16,000 sq. ft. and the range is from 600 to 500,000 sq. ft. (These numbers exclude space rented to tenants not receiving incubation services).

- Eighty-five percent of all senior incubator managers have a college degree or post-graduate education.

- The average incubator offers full incubation services to 20 in-house and affiliate companies; member incubators serve an average of 24.

A relatively new concept in economic development circles, business incubation has grown markedly — from 12 North American programs in 1980 to the 587 identified by this study.

The 1998 State of the Business Incubation Industry joins "The Impact of Incubator Investments" study (conducted in 1997 by Ohio University, the Southern Technology Council, University of Michigan and NBIA) to paint a picture of today's incubators and the effect they're having.

"There's no question they are viable economic development tools," says Adkins. "Now we also know incubators are better at what they do if their managers remain involved through membership in the association, the industry's best professional development resource."

For information on the study or to obtain a copy of the 1998 State of the Business Incubation Industry ($22 to NBIA members, $32 nonmembers plus $7 shipping and handling) contact NBIA, 20 East Circle Drive, Suite 190, Athens, Ohio 45701; 740-593-4331; fax 740-593-1996.

Krewe of Nereids presents 33rd annual Ball Masque

The songs and music of America's cities took center stage at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum as the Krewe of Nereids presented their 33rd annual ball masque. Colorful costumes and elaborately choreographed dance programs highlighted the evening as the krewe members staged "City Sounds" for their invited guests.

In her music and attire, the Captain captured the mood and excitement of city sounds and heralded the opening of the gala evening. The Captain's entrance established the theme of the ball and invited the audience to feel the pulse of America's cities in the variety of styles and tempos in the music of our cities: disco, jazz, rumba, a show tune, and the blues.

The creativity, energy, and pulsating rhythms of "City Sounds" came alive as the Maids and Dukes of the 1999 royal court appeared.

The first maid to their royal majesties represented the disco beat of San Francisco. Her gown, complemented with a self-train, was a colorful pieced dress of orange, black and white, black check, and apple green satin. Long black fringe encircled the dress from the bodice to the hem. Large appliqued record discs of black and hot pink sequins adorned the skirt. The white plumed headpiece of a rainbow design repeated the theme of the dress.

The blue notes of Beale Street were expressed in the blue velvets and lames of the next maid's gown and the blue ostrich feathers and plumes of the headpiece. The empire-style dress featured an attached train, cap sleeves, and pearl and gold beaded fringe.

The maid who represented showtime in New York wore a striking dress with cuffs at the wrists featuring crowns of hot pink ostrich feathers and triple teardrop pendants of sequins and silver beads. A gold and silver sequined braid bordered a separate train which was attached at the shoulders and heavily adorned with predominately silver sequined appliques.

The maid representing the razzmatazz jazz of Chicago wore a split-skirted gold satin and brocade gown with a self-train adorned with rhinestones and crystal teardrops. Three boas of black marabou feathers and teardrop pendants were attached at the wrist. The headpiece featured pumpkin colored plumes and black feathers.

The full-skirted bronze lame gown of the maid who portrayed the Tex-Mex sound of southwestern cities featured a sombrero style headpiece. The double ruffle at the hem, one of lace and sequins, the other of plaid lame, repeated the Tex-Mex theme.

Pink jewels and gold sequins adorned the gown of the maid who represented the syncopation of Miami's rhumba music. Calypso sleeves and a tiered and ruffled train complemented the asymmetrical black, silver, and hot pink gown. Fuchsia plumes trimmed her turban, encrusted with gold and silver rhinestone fruit.

Epitomizing the spirited interpretation of America through the music of its cities, her Majesty Queen Doris XXXIII appeared and bid all her royal subjects to celebrate their musical ties. In the Nereids tradition, the identities of Queen Doris and her maids are never revealed.

Henry Martinez reigned as King Nereus XXXIII. Dukes to His Majesty were Messrs. Charles H. Johnson Jr., Russell Love, Jon W. Ritten, Todd Torguson, Cecil G. Woods, and Stephen F. Goscinski. Royal pages to their majesties were James Kody Cannon, Logan Christopher Dedeaux, Brett Baxter Brooks, and Shawn Patrick Bradford.

The magical and musical fun of "City Sounds" continues on Sunday, Feb. 7 at 1 p.m. when the 33rd annual parade of the Krewe of Nereids rolls in the Bay-Waveland area.

Firefighter completes officer training

Senior Firefighter Ronald Avery, five-year veteran of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department, recently completed basic Fire Officer training at the Mississippi State Fire Academy. The course, accredited by the International Fire Service Accreditation Congress, is designed to assist on-line officers with the following areas: human resource management, community awareness/public relations, organization structure, administration, budgeting, government structure, communications, information management, planning, inspections, investigation, public fire education, emergency service delivery and safety. Students must successfully complete a written and skills examination to pass the course.

Avery is best known locally by school children for his fire safety program visits to schools and day care centers. He was especially effective for the 400-plus children who attended the "Wild About Firemen" segment of the library's summer reading program. In his off-duty hours the senior firefighter works with special needs children of the Pass Christian School System.

"I am always proud of my

Gavney's home

One week after surgery for colon cancer, William Gavney returned to his Webb Street home Tuesday.

Gavney, who serves as Hancock County's chief building inspector and zoning enforcement officer, had surgery on Jan. 19 at Gulfport Memorial Hospital. Prior to the surgery, doctors were treating him with radiation and chemotherapy.

The Echo called Gavney's home Tuesday to check on his condition, and Gavney's wife Judith reported, "He's coming home today. In fact, my son just went to pick him up from the hospital."

Mrs. Gavney said surgery that normally takes up to eight hours was performed in about four and a half hours, "and doctors found no further cancer." She said Gavney's appendix and gall bladder were affected by the radiation, and had to be removed during the operation.

"The doctors are pleased at how quick he has recovered," she said. "In fact, when I left him in the doorway of his room Monday night, he was dancing."

Trash receptacles

Chairman Ellis Cuevas and members of the Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee gathered at Hancock County's Civic Center this week to unveil two trash receptacles, which will be placed outside the front door in an on-going campaign to cut down on litter. (Echo staff photo by Ed Lepoma)

Thatcher's 'Beach Walks' in second printing

A second printing of Beach Walks by George Thatcher was announced by Gwen McKee, president of Quail Ridge Press. The first printing sold out in only three months — a sales record for the publisher.

"The book has sold rapidly and beyond our expectations," McKee said. "Sales of the book, especially on the Coast, have been outstanding."

The small, hardcover book is a collection of 200 of Thatcher's daily columns, which originally appeared in The Sun Herald.

Lloyd Gray, editor of the Northeast Mississippi Daily Journal (Tupelo) describes the book as "a marvelous invitation to rediscover the joy and wonder available when we simply slow down and observe our natural surroundings."

For those who have gone too long without sand in their shoes, a daily beach walk with George Thatcher offers a bit of peace in a busy world.

Thatcher, a retired banker, is one of six statewide honorees to receive the "Mississippi Ageless Hero" distinction in 1999. The award, given by Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Mississippi, honors Mississippians age 65 and over, whose accomplishments past age 65 have been inspiring to others.

Thatcher received the award in the category "New Beginning" for his accomplishment as writer of Beach Walks.

Network schedules meeting

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

American Legion Auxiliary
Unit 139

The ladies from the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 visited the Dixie White House Jan. 7 to entertain the residents.

Jackie Burnett, director of activities, had the residents assembled in the Rec Room.

Lena Mae Oustalet played the piano, while Roslyn Weathers led the singing.

Residents joined in the singing and were enjoying the music.

Residents of Hotel Reed Nursing Center welcomed Roslyn Weathers and Lena Mae Oustalet Jan. 21 for the regular monthly sing-a-long.

Connie Frymire, director of activities, had the lobby filled with residents.

Oustalet played the piano while Weathers led the singing, and residents joined in with the familiar songs.

While "Happy Birthday" was sung, the celebrants were given gifts.

Blue Jeans Garden Club

The monthly meeting of the Blue Jeans Garden Club was held Jan. 21 at the home of Thelma Exnicous with co-hostess Dot Feahney.

Seventeen members were present. Judging of specimen results are:

Cultivated, Emelda Indovina; dried, Beulah Peterson, horticultural, Dot Feahney; miniature, June Bouck; potted, Gloria Norton; wild, Betty Klein.

Each winner received one point for a specimen. Committees and hostesses were appointed by the president, Thelma Exnicous, for the coming year.

A collection for the food pantry was taken up. A check to the pantry is issued twice each year. Half and Half was won by Emelda Indovina. Door prizes of potted plants were won by Dot Feahney and Emelda Indovina.

Next meeting will be at the Historic Bay St. Louis Depot Feb. 18 with special ceremonies and social.

Special programs are planned for the next two months.

Take Off Pounds Sensibly

TOPS WAVELAND 307

TOPS Chapter MS 307 Waveland met Wednesday, Jan. 27 at the Waveland Public Library. Fourteen members were present. Cindy was the week's best loser with 8 1/2 pounds. Jinny won the incentive award.

Ruth presented the program, and club members welcomed new members Minnie and Anna. Awards given at the Jan. 20 meeting went to Paula for 12 weeks and Sherrie for 18 weeks of consecutive weight loss.

Ruth received a pinnet for walking a grand total of 250 miles.

TOPS' web address is <http://www.tops.org>. Log on for loads of information. The weight loss chapter promotes enthusiasm, recognition, understanding and encourages sensible eating habits. Anyone interested is welcome to join.

The chapter meets every Wednesday at the Waveland Public Library. Weigh-ins are from 4:45-5:30 p.m. with the meeting following.

Anyone interested in losing weight the sensible way and/or maintaining weight loss is welcome to visit the chapter. Call Ruth at 466-9880 for information.

Republican Women's Club

The Republican Women's Club met Jan. 7 at the Diamondhead Community Center. There were 22 members in attendance, and three new members were welcomed.

Legislative Day, which will be in Jackson March 2, was noted. We will meet Gov. Fordice, take a tour of the Capitol and attend a luncheon at a Methodist Church. The day will end with a tea hosted by Mrs. Fordice at the Executive Mansion. We hope to have a representative contingent traveling to Jackson for that event.

Further details will be discussed at the next meeting of the Hancock Republican Women, Thursday, Feb. 4, at 11 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis Public Library. Mark your calendars to attend.

Campus model

Architect-planner Lynn Craig manipulates wood-carved buildings on a scale model of the USM Gulf Park campus in Long Beach. The model shows the location of existing structures on the campus and also depicts hypothetical buildings that could be built on the campus in the future. Craig, a professor of architecture and planning at Clemson University, is helping USM design a master plan of development at the Long Beach campus. (USM Public Relations photo by Phil Hearn)

USM working on plan for developing Gulf Park campus

The University of Southern Mississippi unveiled a proposed master plan for development of its Gulf Park campus with the exact site of a new library and advanced classroom building still to be determined.

Campus master planning consultant Lynn Craig outlined the preliminary master plan to members of the university's Gulf Coast Advisory Council as USM narrowed its choices of a specific site for construction of the $9 million multi-purpose media library and $5.65 million Advanced Education Center.

"We're looking for a consensus on the best place to locate those new facilities," said Craig, indicating a likely site would be immediately northeast of the Gulf Park administration building.

"It's my understanding the design work for the library and Advanced Education Center will commence early this spring and that construction will begin in late 1999 or early 2000," he added.

He said Studio South Architects of Pascagoula, headed by Chet Allred, will serve as principal architect for both projects.

The 28-member Gulf Coast Advisory Council, chaired by Hancock Bank President George Schloegel of Gulfport, was created in April of 1997 to help the university define and meet the growing higher education needs of the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Dwight Evens, president and CEO of Mississippi Power Company, serves as vice chair of the panel.

Craig's initial draft of the master plan also was to be carefully studied during the day by a 12-member USM Gulf Coast Campus Planning Committee guided by Long Beach Mayor Robert Bass and Dr. James O. Williams, USMGC vice president.

The planning committee — comprised of students, faculty and staff — is advising Craig on the overall master plan, and the site locations for the new library and education center.

"The funding is in place for the first phase of the library, with second-phase funding to come," said USM President Horace Fleming. "We have all of the funding for the education center."

USM — Working on plan

The Phase I or pre-planning phase for the library is budgeted at $5 million with Phase II expected to cost about $4 million for equipment and furniture. The current library is more than 65 years old and was designed originally as an art studio.

The Legislature appropriated $3.65 million from a bond issue to build the Advanced Education Center, which will include a new 450-seat auditorium.

Another $2 million in matching funds has been committed by Harrison County and the municipalities of Biloxi, Gulfport, Long Beach, Pass Christian and D'Iberville.

"We are very close to producing an agree-upon master plan," Craig said before the latest session. "We have a draft and once that's agreed upon, this work will be documented. It should establish the guidelines for placement of future campus buildings, landscaped open space, pedestrian circulation and parking."

Finding available land for expansion of the Gulf Park campus was an early concern, USM officials said. The university currently owns most of the 46 acres in the Beach Park Place area that encompasses the campus, and is negotiating with the City of Long Beach for another 10 acres immediately west of Gulf Park currently used by the city of recreational fields.

"We face the same kind of challenge at Gulf Park that we face in Hattiesburg, in that we're land-locked in both places," said Fleming, "but we've been fortunate to get additional properties as they become available. We'll continue to do that because it's important to the future."

Craig has been on sabbatical leave since September from his post as a professor of architecture at Clemson University. He is a member of the American Institute of Architects, the Royal Institute of British Architects and the American Planning Association.

A planning professional,

Craig has been preparing the drawings and models to help USM Gulf Coast plan for the future. Another architectural planner, Victor Evans of Fairfax, Va., is assisting.

A former linebacker for the Clemson football team back in the mid 1960s, Craig also operates a modest architectural and planning office, Pendleton Design Group, in Pendleton, S.C. He has been gathering aerial photos and other data to produce an accurate base plan for architectural drawings. He also utilizes in the planning process a large, interactive model of the Gulf Park campus — complete with existing and hypothetical buildings made of wood.

"We want to develop a planning guide that articulates the vision of the campus — what we aspire it to be — and reflects some planning assumptions in terms of the size of the campus, number of students, appearance of buildings and the location of the live-oak trees," Craig said.

Job Corps students participate in Groundhog Job Shadow Day

On Feb. 2, Job Corps students across Mississippi will cast shadows of their own as they participate in the second annual National Groundhog Job Shadow Day.

The Job Shadow Day challenges employers around the country to open their workplaces to young people and show them firsthand what happens on a daily basis.

The idea is similar to Job Corps' School-to-Work system, which is in place year-round. Job Corps centers in Mississippi, which include Batesville and Gulfport, regularly ask employers to help train young workers on the job.

Students shadow employers for up to 10 weeks, beginning as unpaid interns and working gradually toward full-time, paid positions in some cases.

"Groundhog Job Shadow Day is a tremendous way for Mississippi Job Corps centers to explore their School-to-Work programs to employers," said Job Corps Regional Director Melvin Collins.

"If employers are willing to spend one day with a student, they may be willing to commit to mentoring a student for an extended period of time."

For the event, several students from Gulfport Job Corps Center will shadow workers at the Stennis Space Center construction site. Students from Batesville Job Corps Center will spend the day shadowing employers at a local hospital, lithographic printing service and food service vendor.

"We view Groundhog Job Shadow Day as a way to establish a relationship between Job Corps and an employer," said Collins. "Employers will see the quality student Job Corps produces and the value they can bring to a job."

Groundhog Job Shadow Day

is a national initiative sponsored by America's Promise — The Alliance for Youth, founded by General Colin Powell; the national School-to-Work office; Junior Achievement; and the American Society of Association Executives. More than 500,000 students will participate in Groundhog Job Shadow Day nationwide.

There are 17 Job Corps centers in operation in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee. Depending on vocation of interest, Job Corps applicants can be assigned to any of the centers in the Southeastern region.

Additionally, students in the Southeastern region may attend any of the six centers in Kentucky.

For more information about Job Corps, call 800-733-JOBS or visit the website at www.jobcorps.org.

Business Review

Advertorial

"Service with a smile" is our motto at Cuevas Gas Company in Pass Christian, owned and operated by Scottie Cuevas.

With many years of experience in the propane business, Scottie knows the importance of great service and customer satisfaction.

The folks at Cuevas Gas Company strive to serve their customers with promptness, kindness and competitive prices. We know the best customer is a satisfied customer because that person will be a repeat customer.

We rent and sell new propane tanks, and for our customers we will service your propane appliances or replace them. We also install fireplaces and fire logs.

Stop in or call our office to let us know how we can be of service to you.

Serving all of Hancock and Harrison Counties, our office is located in Pass Christian, three miles North of I-10 on Vidalia Road at 26948 Richard Drive.

Contact us by phone at 228-255-0175 and by fax at 228-255-0307. Office hours are Monday through Friday, 7:30 AM to 4:30 PM.

Tuition-free phlebotomy class offered at Hancock Medical Center

Enrollment limited; apply soon!

Hancock Medical Center is taking applications for a limited number of students for a phlebotomy class. The class is designed for recent high school graduates or seniors graduating in 1999 who do not plan to go to college.

The class will offer these graduates an opportunity to gain vocational and technical skills in phlebotomy (collecting and processing blood specimens).

The class will last for one year and allows the students an opportunity to take the registry exam and become certified phlebotomy technicians (PBT (ASCP)), upon successful completion of the program.

There is no tuition required. Students only pay for their books, supplies and required materials. Space in the class is limited. Acceptance is competitive and based upon recent graduation from high school, transcript, GPA, any previous medical training and a required entrance examination.

Applications must be completed before Friday, Feb. 26. If interested, contact Richard Flowers, laboratory director, at 467-8697.

HMC offers class

Dottie Ncaise, an HMC phlebotomist, draws blood from Cathy Garner.

Hospice Care Stamp

Quality Hospice of the Gulf Coast, Inc. is pleased to share the release of the Hospice Care Stamp with our Community

The first new Hospice postal stamp shines light on the growing use of Hospice.

"This stamp is truly a unique and special form of recognition, with a plan for about 100 million to be printed," U.S. Postmaster General William J. Henderson said.

Those of us involved with hospice accept death as a natural part of life, seeking neither to hasten nor prolong the dying process -- in short, to help terminally ill patients live out their final days in dignity, and without the fear of dying in pain and alone.

Prepare now for nesting birds

Nest boxes should be put up now if you want to attract nesting birds to your backyard, according to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

"Although most birds will begin nesting several months from now, some such as the tufted titmouse, Carolina chickadee, and Carolina wren can begin their nesting activities early," Mississippi Outdoors magazine editor David Watts said.

"Depending largely on the weather, some backyard birds can begin nesting in late winter, and it helps to have nest boxes up and ready," he said.

Watts said some species already are preparing nesting sites. "Recently I was at Percy Quin State Park near McComb, and I saw a pair of brown-headed nuthatches excavating a woodpecker hole in a dead tree. This could very well be where they will nest," Watts said.

More than two dozen North American birds will nest in man-made structures. And even those that visit your feeder that don't nest in bird houses often will nest in or near a backyard if conditions are right.

"Chickadees and the titmouse will use a bluebird-type nest box with an entrance hole measuring about one-and-one-quarter inches," Watts said.

Gulf Coast storyteller tells tale of the Singing River today

A year's look at three centuries of Coast history continues this weekend with a tale of lost tribes and lost love. Popular local storyteller Chris Vinsonhaler thinks she knows the story behind one of the most enduring of local legends — Jackson County's famous Singing River.

Hear Vinsonhaler's tale and the story behind her research this Sunday, Jan. 31, at Gulf Islands National Seashore.

The Singing River begins at 2 p.m. at the Davis Bayou Visitors Center in Ocean Springs. Admission is free.

To commemorate the 300th anniversary of French explorers coming to the Coast, Gulf Islands National Seashore presents "1699-1999: Ship Island and the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

With his ships safely at anchor off Ship Island, Pierre LeMoyne d'Iberville rowed ashore to a semi-unknown land veiled in legends and half-truths.

The Story of the Singing River is one such legend that could date to the French arrival here on Mississippi's Coast.

Named for the Pascagoula tribe, it is said that on certain, quiet nights a low chanting or humming sound is heard floating across today's Pascagoula River.

Some say spirits, or the river itself mourns the fate of a small tribe facing defeat before larger, more war-like foes.

Rather than be enslaved or destroyed, the peaceful people held hands and chanted songs as they stepped into the river and beneath its waves.

What did the French find that could suggest such a fate for the small band of tribespeople? Much like ancient storytellers who told stories to each their audiences, Vinsonhaler will use her art to not only inform, but to also take her audience back in time to find the answers to this question and others.

The Singing River is designed for adults and children 10 and up and lasts about an hour.

Once the French discovered the mouth of the Myssyspy River, modern Mississippi's Ship Island became a crossroads for explorers, soldiers, sailors, pirates and settlers coming ashore to the new colony of Louisiana.

Like many historians, reenactors and others, Vinsonhaler is this year helping Gulf Islands National Seashore tell the story of "1699-1999: Ship Island and the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

Her future presentation at Davis Bayou may include the tale of Jean Lafitte and stories from the old Biloxi lighthouse.

The William M. Colmer Visitor Center is open seven days a week. Fall and winter hours are 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. The Colmer Visitor Center and Davis Bayou are accessible by Park Road from Hwy. 90 East in Ocean Springs.

MS Craftsmen's Guild accepting applications

The Craftsmen's Guild of Mississippi, Inc., is accepting applications through Saturday, March 6, for the Spring Standards Review by which artists may be selected for membership in the Guild.

Exhibiting membership is open to anyone whose work reflects professional standards and a high degree of competence in creating fine hand-made crafts. The Standards Review Committee, which is composed of exhibiting members of the Guild, meets twice a year, in March and September, to jury prospective members.

Benefits of Exhibiting Membership include invitations to show and sell work at all sanctioned Craftsmen's Guild events, such as the Chimneyville Crafts Festival and the Pioneer and Indian Festival; the privilege to sell and demonstrate work at the Guild's two galleries, the Chimeville Crafts Gallery at the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum in Jackson and the Mississippi Crafts Center on the Natchez Trace Parkway in Ridgeland; referrals to collectors, buyers, designers and wholesalers; referrals to other national and international festival organizers; referrals to feature writers, authors and producers; and invitations to special members' meetings, workshops and events.

The Craftsmen's Guild of Mississippi, Inc., was founded in 1973 as a nonprofit organization of craftsmen and others interested in preserving and promoting the folk, traditional and contemporary crafts of Mississippi and the southern region.

The Guild implements its goals through public service projects, education in the arts, special exhibits and events, and sales and marketing of members' work.

To request a Standards Application Form, or for more information on the Craftsmen's Guild of Mississippi, Inc., call (601) 981-0019, e-mail mscrafts@mscraftsmensguild.org, or visit the Guild website at <http://www.mscraftsmensguild.org>.
